Are you really saving money or just forgetting to spend it?

The average American earns more than half a million dollars during his working career. But you couldn't tell it from looking at the average American bank account.

Where it all goes.

Sure, there are expenses and necessities of life which take a big chunk out of everyone's earnings. But the fact is that most of us let our fortunes just slip away. Bit by bit.

Buying a little something we don't need here. Wasting a little something we do need there.

Until what we call our life's savings are really more like what we somehow neglected to spend.

The "Save Now—Pay Later" plan.

But it doesn't have to be that way. Because at Fidelity National Bank, we have a new plan which can help even the most reluctant saver put it away in a big way.

It's called "Save Now—Pay Later." And it's designed to help you do just that—save on the small stuff now so you can afford the big things later. College, a house, or retirement, for example.

Like most successful plans, it's really quite simple.

The first thing you do is open a Fidelity passbook savings plan. (Or if you already have one, start remembering it's there.) It offers you the flexibility of withdrawing your money at any time you need it, an interest rate of 5% (the highest the law allows), and a physical reminder to save: your Fidelity passbook.

Next, at your option, we can help you decide just how much you should be saving each month — based on your present rent, food bills, car payments and other expenses. As well as your future financial needs.

Leave the hardest part to us.

Of course, then comes the hardest part—actually saving.

And if you have a problem with forgetting or not bothering to do it sometimes, we have an answer: leave it to us.

Each month, we can automatically transfer any amount you choose from your checking to your savings account. That way, you don't have to worry about saving (or not saving). And at 5% interest, you'll be surprised how fast your money will pile up when the deposits are automatic.

Saving the best for last.

But whether you choose to make your deposits yourself or have us make them for you, this is one way to make sure that your financial future will be something to look forward to. Expectantly. Because no matter what happens, it'll help you save the best part of your money for when you really need it. (Which is the last thing most of us are likely to do on our own.)

So, if you'd like to stop nickel and diming yourself to death and start putting away a nice piece of change, stop by any Fidelity office and get all the details of our "Save Now—Pay Later" plan. It won't make your fortune for you. But it will help you keep it.
